Snow clearing on residential streets

Are you in favour or opposition of the issue? (required)

In opposition

Comments - please refrain from providing personal information in this field (maximum 2500 characters)

It is difficult to comprehend that a major city can decide to not clear snow on certain residential streets. These streets can be assigned a low priority for clearing but it is ridiculous to ignore them entirely. I live on a residential cul de sac that has NO sidewalks.

Pedestrians and vehicles must negotiate the snow, ice and ruts on this road every winter. Why can the city not maintain this road after others have been looked after? We slip, slide and fall on the ice every year.

Our only hope when calling 311 is that the roads department takes requests for sand/salt and some road clearing seriously.

Things should and must improve especially as we get older and falls on the ice become more dangerous .
