I think that creating a new building in this area is a horrible idea. The street parking in this area is scarce and nearly non-existent. The amount buildings charge for parking in them is absolutely absurd, and any continuing construction in this area will make it nearly impossible for both parking and navigation. Unless you implement a "landlords can no longer charge tenants for parking, and cannot raise the rent to hide the fees," it's a horrible idea. The City of Calgary continues to remove parking in favour of bike lanes, which is actively hurting people with low mobility who want to live in the area, like myself. I understand the desire to build more, but it's actively taking away from the people who have lived here for years. Additionally, having a park attached to my building is why I chose this building in the first place. Please reconsider, and also consider the people who can't be physical enough for biking to get to and from their jobs all through the city.
