executive summary

In 2008, Calgary released the 10-year Economic Strategy for Calgary entitled: Think Big. Act Bold. Create Great. Initiated in 2007, the Strategy was written when the wind was at our backs. Calgary was at the crest of one of the longest, most significant economic expansions in our history. The result was a strategy that emphasized Calgary’s desired position as a global city—competitive, successful and recognized as a global centre of energy.

Calgary and the world have changed significantly since the original strategy was released in 2008. While the rest of the world weathered a deep, prolonged recession, Calgary’s economy decelerated from 7.9 per cent gross domestic product (GDP) growth in 2006 to 1.7 per cent growth in 2008. By 2011 the economy had rebounded, recording 5.4 per cent growth. Calgary has been leading the nation since 2011, with growth exceeding 3.7 per cent each year. Recognizing the impact of this market volatility, it became necessary to take the time to evaluate our progress and reformulate our priorities as the Strategy approached the fifth year of implementation.

The process of refreshing the Strategy began with a series of CEO roundtable focus groups in 2012. Based on the outcomes of these discussions, Calgary Economic Development and The City of Calgary launched a process to update the Economic Strategy for Calgary. This process engaged more than 300 citizens, elected officials, community and business leaders from Calgary and the surrounding region to discuss the priorities set out in 2008, determine the progress made towards those priorities and to assess whether our priorities had shifted. Guiding the process was a 40 member Project Advisory Committee comprised of community leaders drawn from the public, private and not-for-profit sectors.

The Economic Strategy for Calgary is the result of stakeholders emphasizing the need to focus on our strengths—to build on our energy. For stakeholders, ‘energy’ referred not only to the energy sector but also the energy of our people and our city. Calgarians remain optimistic, and have identified a number of economic opportunities for the city while recognizing the need to continue to build on our global reputation and foster purposeful diversification of our economy. In addition, there is a need for a greater focus on building a strong community and ensuring that everyone living and arriving in Calgary has the opportunity to share in our prosperity.

As a result the Strategy has been renamed to Building on our Energy. The name aligns with the promotional brand, Calgary. Be Part of the Energy. The Strategy puts forward six energies as our areas of focus: Global, Entrepreneurial, Innovative, Community, People and Collaborative. These areas of focus build on the strength of the energy sector, support entrepreneurs, give greater attention to growing technology and innovation as well as raise the profile and importance of building attracting and retaining a skilled work force through a renewed focus on people and community. Finally, and most importantly, there is attention given to the need to work better together and collaborate to ensure the implementation of the Strategy is successful.

approach

Vision: Calgary is a city of boundless energy. The source of our energy and economic success is our sense of community and our commitment to shared prosperity and sustainable development. We welcome everyone to be part of the energy.

Mission: To align The City of Calgary, its civic partners, private sector and other community organizations in achieving economic competitiveness, embracing shared prosperity and building a strong community.

Goals for the Areas of Focus
Global Energy	Entrepreneurial Energy	Innovative Energy	Community Energy	People Energy	Collaborative Energy
Calgary is an undisputed global energy centre. Our international reputation attracts new people, investment and businesses as we strengthen the energy value chain.	Calgary is a magnet for businesses fostering pathways to purposeful economic diversification and growth.	Calgary fosters a culture of innovation where problems are solved through a systems approach harnessing the power of technology.	Calgary is a vibrant, urban and prosperous community that offers people-friendly neighbourhoods, diverse housing, and inspirational spaces.	Calgary embraces social inclusion and shared prosperity.	Calgary is the best place to live in Canada, with strong collaboration between public, private and non-profit sector partners in building a great city.

The goals for the areas of focus, supporting strategies and actions were presented to community stakeholders at an Economic Summit held in May 2014. The Summit served to identify tactics, stakeholders, key performance indicators, implementation timelines, resources and risks associated with the Strategy.

Building on our Energy is a strategy for Calgary. It is a broad strategy meant to serve as a guiding document for everyone that contributes to the economic development of Calgary. The implementation of the Strategy will require extensive collaboration among sometimes disparate stakeholders committed to making Calgary a great place to make a living and a great place to make a life.

A leadership and implementing committee, comprised of the key economic development organizations in Calgary, is being assembled. This implementing committee will convene throughout the year and be responsible for annually reporting on the core and supplementary indicators and actions set forth in the Strategy. Calgary Economic Development will take the lead role in stewarding the document and reporting on progress towards the goals of the six areas of focus outlined in the Strategy.

where we have been

In 2008, Calgary released an Economic Development Strategy that encouraged Calgarians to Think Big. Act Bold. Create Great. The Strategy had three broad areas of focus to establish Calgary as a competitive, successful global city:

- people and community
- business and enterprise
- international reach

These areas of focus were deliberately aspirational and premised on building foundations for long-term growth. The Strategy was designed to build a community that would attract expertise and talent from across the country and around the world, an economy built around centres of excellence, and a community with an international profile and reputation and a global centre for business and people.

Despite the recession and significant changes in civic, post-secondary and corporate leadership in Calgary since 2008, positive progress was made on 37 of 61 actions. Some key successes include:

focus on people and community

- University of Calgary, SAIT Polytechnic and Bow Valley College have each increased their presence in Calgary’s downtown core.
- The Calgary Film Centre, National Music Centre and the King Edward art incubator are advancing professional arts practice and community development in Calgary.
- New construction has begun at the Stampede, Rivers District and East Village area including the completion of Stage One of the RiverWalk Master Plan.
- A labour force supply and demand study has been completed followed by successful labour force attraction missions to targeted geographic areas.

focus on business and enterprise

- Calgary has a number of international financial institutions with new additions including the Industrial and Commercial Bank of China, Bank of China and the Royal Bank of Scotland and was listed, for the first time on the Global Financial Centre Index, in 2012 (with a 28th place ranking – rising to 22nd in 2014).
- The Calgary Industrial Land Strategy has been updated and Calgary holds a significant supply of industrial land.
- Record breaking development permit activity including approximately 10 million square feet of new office space in the downtown core, including the Bow and Eighth Avenue Place towers.

focus on international reach

- Calgary as a Global Energy Centre Strategy was completed in 2010 and subsequently attracted the Global Clean Energy Congress. Calgary now hosts the world’s largest annual energy conference, the Global Petroleum Show.
- Calgary has attracted over $50 billion in international business and energy investment since 2008.
- Calgary. Be Part of the Energy brand was released in 2011 and adopted by all of The City’s promotional partners.
- The Calgary International Airport is undergoing the largest expansion in its history, opened the longest runway in Canada and is now the third busiest airport in Canada.
- The Global Business Centre, opened in 2011, has hosted 26 organizations, 19 of which have established a permanent home in Calgary.

bringing great ideas forward

While there have been successes, many of the 61 actions from the 2008 Strategy are still ongoing. Other actions require additional efforts to be fully realized. In refreshing the Strategy, a total of 29 original actions have been pulled forward to the updated Strategy including:

- Eight actions from People and Community
- Thirteen actions from Business and Enterprise
- Eight actions from International Reach

Many of these actions have been revised and consolidated. Building on our Energy is comprised of 31 actions, 12 of which are new or substantially modified.

stakeholder engagement

Updating the Economic Strategy for Calgary involved an extensive stakeholder engagement process that ran from the summer of 2012 until the spring of 2014. The purpose of the stakeholder engagement was two-fold: to evaluate progress on the 2008 Strategy and revise priorities and to build support for the implementation of the Strategy. Efforts were made to involve a diverse set of stakeholders from the local and provincial government, private and not-for-profit and post-secondary sectors.

Mayor's Roundtables —The engagement process was initiated with a series of roundtable focus groups. Convened by the Mayor, 100 business and community leaders were provided with a progress assessment and asked to identify priorities for the city in the coming five years. Following the Mayor's Roundtables the process to update the Strategy was officially initiated.

Project Advisory Committee —At the outset of the refresh, a committee of 40 business and community leaders was struck to provide input into the Strategy. This group provided primary input and served as a touch point to verify and clarify input received from the broader community.

Stakeholder Interviews —In order to reach the broader business community, a consultant was engaged to interview almost 100 of Calgary's business leaders. These leaders were asked to identify priorities for business and community, to provide their vision for the future and the actions required to achieve that future.

Focus Group Discussions —In addition to interviews with the business community, focus group discussions were held with business and community groups to receive input from entrepreneurs, innovators, youth, community groups and regional partners.

Touch Points with other City-funded Agencies —To build support for the implementation of the Strategy, The City's civic partners including Tourism Calgary, the Calgary TELUS Convention Centre, Innovate Calgary and Calgary Arts Development have been included throughout the process.

Economic Summit —The Economic Summit, held in May 2014, was convened to bring together approximately 130 stakeholders to review the areas of focus, strategies and actions resulting from the update and to provide input into tactics, stakeholders, resources, timelines and risks.

strategic alignment

Building on our Energy aligns closely with other initiatives and strategies for The City of Calgary. In addition, Calgary will collaborate with the provincial and federal governments and other stakeholders to realize economic success. To create alignment the following strategies were reviewed:

- Imagine Calgary
- Municipal Development Plan
- Corporate Industrial Land Strategy
- Centre City Plan
- Calgary Poverty Reduction Initiative
- Strategic plans for other City-funded agencies
- Post-secondary strategies
- Calgary Regional Partnership Regional Economic Prosperity Work Plan
- Provincial Economic Framework
- Provincial Small Business Strategy
- The Way We Prosper, an Economic Development Strategy for Edmonton strengths, weaknesses, opportunities and threats (SWOT Analysis)

Input received from stakeholders, findings from a comprehensive document review and an assessment of economic performance indicators were analyzed to gain an understanding of the strengths, weaknesses, opportunities and threats facing economic development in Calgary. This analysis provided an understanding of positive and negative elements to be considered in the goals, strategies and actions of the Strategy. This analysis resulted in several overarching themes to be considered in updating the Strategy:

- Calgary’s energy sector provides many opportunities for growth but the national and global reputation of the sector is at risk
- Supporting entrepreneurs is one of our best opportunities for purposeful diversification and employment growth
- Calgary has a growing innovation and technology sector with opportunity to grow from the strength of the energy sector
- Building livable, accessible, safe communities is vitally important to attracting and retaining great people
- Creating opportunities for all residents to share in Calgary’s prosperity will enhance our communities and contribute to economic sustainability and prosperity
- Collaboration and leadership are key to both effectively promoting Calgary and the successful implementation of the Strategy

a review of best practice

A best practices review comprised a high level scan of actions undertaken in other jurisdictions that addressed issues faced by Calgary as identified through the SWOT analysis. Communities were selected based on size and growth trajectory. Canadian communities were selected in order to draw from cities operating in similar regulatory environments to Calgary. The topics researched in this review of best practice were:

- Community Development
- Immigration and Workforce
- Affordable Housing
- Financing Infrastructure
- Placemaking
- Technology and Start-ups
- Branding and Marketing

Historically, many of these issues have not been addressed in an economic development strategy. However, economic development in Canada today is taking a more comprehensive and integrated approach in its strategic planning efforts to ensure more sustainable, viable and local economies. In order for Calgary to be competitive, and given our historical and projected growth patterns, these issues need to be addressed in the Strategy. The following chart shows communities in Canada that have included these issues in their economic development strategies.

	Community Development	Immigration + Workforce	Affordable Housing	Financing Infrastructure	Place-Making	Technology + Start-ups	Marketing + Branding
Vancouver	✓	✓	✓			✓	✓
Edmonton	✓			✓	✓	✓	✓
Winnipeg	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓
Hamilton	✓	✓	✓		✓	✓	✓
Mississauga	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓
Toronto	✓					✓	✓
Ottawa	✓	✓		✓	✓	✓	✓
Montreal	✓	✓	✓		✓	✓	✓
Halifax	✓	✓		✓	✓	✓	✓

In addition to the topics above, the best practice review considered two other core issue areas that provide suggestions for a well-functioning strategy implementation. They are:

- Performance Measurement
- Implementation Leadership

partners in economic development

There are a number of agencies and initiatives influencing economic development in Calgary. Calgary Economic Development is a key player in this space, with active programming for the energy, financial services, creative industries, real estate, transportation and logistics and manufacturing sectors. In addition, Calgary Economic Development supports all sectors of the economy through active engagement in workforce development, marketing and investment attraction. Other important sectors, including tourism and technology, are the responsibility of other economic development agencies. Additional sectors—such as public administration, education, healthcare, retail and agriculture—are a significant portion of the economy but beyond the strategic focus of The City’s economic development organizations. Furthermore, there are several community economic development agencies in Calgary making significant social contributions to the economic development landscape that are included in the Strategy.

The diversity of activities and players in economic development in Calgary reinforces the idea that Building on our Energy is a strategy for the entire community and surrounding region. The Strategy’s success will rely on the coordinated effort of dozens of organizations as well as municipal, provincial and federal government partnerships. While many key stakeholders have already been identified or involved in refreshing the Strategy, as the implementation of the Strategy unfolds, new stakeholders will be identified and included in the process.

who we are

Today’s Calgary exhilarates, invigorates and motivates. Calgary is a place of big ideas, where anything is possible. There is also an intense, urban vitality in Calgary that unleashes the bold, can-do spirit of our entrepreneurs, innovators and artists. Global in perspective, Calgary is an increasingly diverse city that embraces change and change-makers, and supports and sustains its communities and its people. Calgary’s western values run deep, underpinned by a strong spirit of volunteerism.

The world’s cities and city-regions are increasingly becoming focal points for research, development and innovation and gateways to global trade. In Canada, Calgary is the centre of energy and is emerging as a centre of innovation and creativity. Calgary has created an urban environment that provides a high quality of life and attracts talent from around the world. Moreover, Calgary has one of the fastest-growing and largest concentrations of workers in the professional, scientific and technical service industry in North America. However, there is a growing sense of a need for balance in Calgary. Not everyone is benefiting from the city’s economic success. More can be done to achieve social, economic and environmental sustainability amidst economic growth.

Calgary has a history of a ‘can-do’ attitude. The stakeholder engagement made it clear: Calgarians are prepared to set challenging goals for themselves and their city. imagineCALGARY, the city’s 100-year vision document is as much an expression of what the city is today as it is a visionary document for what the city will be in the future. Calgary is, and will continue to strive to be, a community where the collective spirit of the people generates opportunity; the environment is treasured and respected; neighbourhoods are mixed; and where the sense of citizenship drives residents to make positive change across the city, Alberta, Canada and the world.

where we are going

It is clear that Calgary has experienced success few other cities have been able to achieve. However, the community and stakeholder engagement for the updated Strategy conveys a clear message: with success comes responsibility and the need for civic and community leadership. To the citizens of Calgary, economic development extends beyond trade, investment and business development. Calgary’s stakeholders are also concerned with diversification, community building, economic prosperity for all residents and a greater level of collaboration to ensure long-term success. The Strategy:

- builds on our energy sector strengths to strengthen trade and investment
- provides the foundation for purposeful diversification
- fosters innovation and creativity
- supports the development of strong communities
- understands that our neighbours’ success is our success and that every citizen should benefit in the region’s prosperity
- brings together stakeholders to promote Calgary with a unique and compelling voice and successfully implement the Strategy

rationale for an updated strategy

While the vision and areas of focus that emerged in the 2008 Economic Strategy remain sound, a number of factors have emerged in recent years that have a direct bearing on the overall approach to economic development and the need to ‘refresh’ the thinking behind the Strategy’s implementation.

the world has changed

If there is one thing that has been consistent since the release of the 2008 Strategy it is that everything has changed. We have experienced tremendous upheaval in the global economy. The world experienced a recession, the effects of which are still being felt today. Six years since the global financial crisis, the economy of the United States, Alberta’s main trading partner, remains uncertain. The global environmental movement continues to grow and gain strength resulting in delayed pipeline approvals and the European Union is moving to impose carbon penalties on Alberta’s oil.

Closer to home, we have experienced changes in civic, private sector and post-secondary leadership. Budget constraints are affecting the construction of infrastructure and educational programming. Amidst this change, Calgarians remain optimistic. Alberta and Calgary have led economic and population growth for the last several quarters. Articles that highlight the difference between Alberta and the rest of Canada are now commonplace. In 2013, the Calgary Economic Region generated 24,200 jobs, 10.8 per cent of all jobs created in Canada. Investment from Asia has been rapidly expanding and remains an important growth market as their expanding economies seek resources and expertise to fuel economic growth.

provincial focus continues to shift

Since the adoption of the Economic Strategy for Calgary by City Council in 2008, the Government of Alberta has completed and published a number of reports and studies that speak to future competitiveness and economic growth in Alberta. This includes:

- Alberta Industry Sector Performance and Prospects (2009)
- Shaping Alberta’s Future: Premier’s Council for Economic Strategy (2010)
- Alberta Industrial Sector Market Opportunities Report (2010)
- Alberta Competitiveness Council: Moving Alberta Forward (2011)

Each of these reports speaks to the need for greater focus on labour market development; productivity, innovation and transportation infrastructure as a means for long-term economic growth; and sustainability. The reports also suggest that the province, and by extension Calgary, needs to focus economic development efforts on the opportunities associated with high potential sectors such as financial services, transportation and logistics, high technology equipment for the energy industry, and information and communications technologies.

While the energy industry is recognized as the mainstay of the provincial economy, there is continued emphasis on broadening the province’s economic base and being better prepared for an increasingly competitive global economy. To that end, these studies point to opportunities for Calgary to show leadership in its economic development programming in the following areas:

- Increasing the participation of under-represented groups in the workforce (most notably Aboriginal Albertans)
- Evolving education to meet the needs of a globally competitive economy
- Fostering greater levels of creativity and innovation
- Increasing productivity through education and innovation
- Improving market access and linkages to new growth markets

a broader perspective of economic development is emerging

A broader perspective on economic development is also emerging with increased emphasis on community and placemaking. As was seen in the review of best practice, all of Calgary’s competitors in Canada recognize the need to build community and focus on place marketing in their economic development strategy. As other jurisdictions explore opportunities in social innovation and social entrepreneurship, stakeholders in Calgary have emphasized the need for shared prosperity and equal opportunity. For Calgary this means:

- Integrating social and community development into the update to the Economic Strategy for Calgary
- Paying greater attention to women, youth, immigrants, people with disabilities and the First Nations and Aboriginal community
- Placing greater emphasis on business retention and expansion and gathering local business intelligence
- Increased focus on innovation and leveraging post-secondary research and education programs and connecting the business and finance community with technology and innovation entrepreneurs performance metrics are expanding

Just as economic development practices have been shifting, so have the ways in which economic development success is measured. While gross domestic product (GDP) and foreign direct investment (FDI) remain important measures of success, increasingly, economic developers are bringing a different lens to bear on measuring success. Performance metrics need to consider community, wellness, labour force participation and employment of marginalized groups and the perceptions of the community. In order to develop a robust set of key performance indicators for the Strategy, ideas have been drawn from the provincial economic development framework, Municipal Development Plan/Calgary Transportation Plan Monitoring Progress Report, imagineCALGARY, Sustainable Calgary as well as resources from the International Economic Developer’s Council and Economic Developers Association of Canada. Key performance indicators have been developed to measure progress towards the overall vision for the Strategy (core indicators) as well as progress for each individual action (supplementary indicators).

what we will do differently

The 2008 Strategy was a strong strategy and fitting for its time. The overarching areas of focus were a match for Calgary at that point in time. Building on our Energy places a renewed emphasis on people and community, as well as developing technology and innovation in Calgary. Perhaps most importantly, the Strategy pays close attention to leadership, collaboration and resources required for its successful implementation.

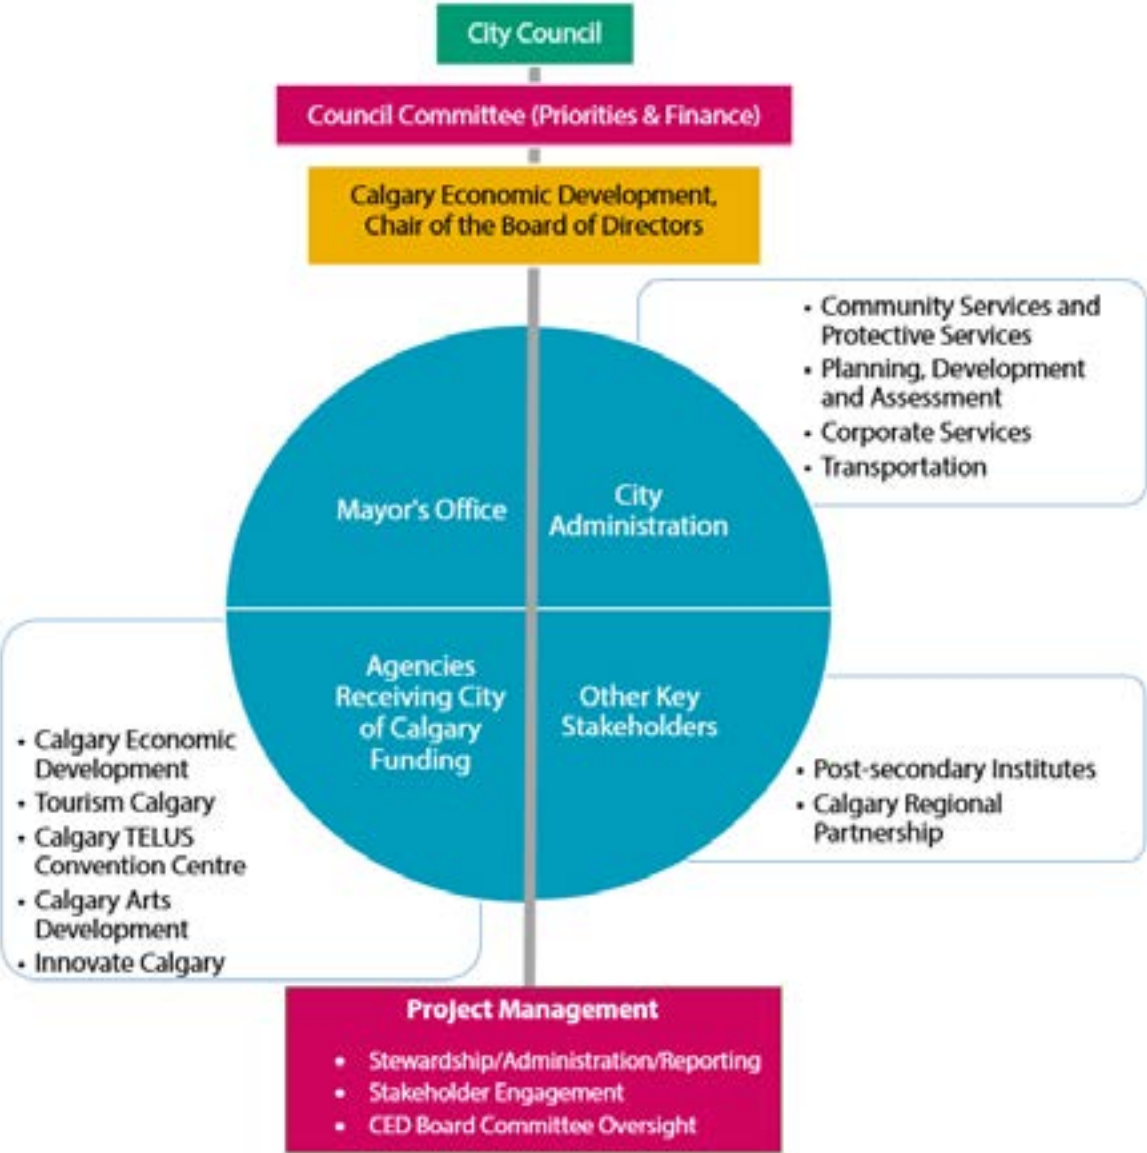

building effective leadership and collaboration

Engagement and collaboration of multiple organizations will be required to successfully implement the Strategy. In developing the update to the Economic Strategy for Calgary, consideration has been given to the other strategies and initiatives, other stakeholders and other orders of government influencing economic development in Calgary. To ensure support for the leadership and implementation of the Strategy, key stakeholders have been engaged throughout the process. Efforts have been made to identify a lead organization for each action. The lead organization will be responsible for convening stakeholders undertaking initiatives in that area. In addition, the lead organization will be responsible for progress reporting on that action. Engagement and collaboration with primary and secondary stakeholders remains a priority for the successful execution for each of the Strategy’s 31 actions.

Calgary Economic Development will lead or co-lead 15 of the 31 actions in the updated Strategy. Innovate Calgary, Tourism Calgary, Calgary Arts Development, Calgary TELUS Convention Centre, Post-secondary institutions, the Calgary Regional Partnership and City Administration will be the lead organizations for the remaining actions. These organizations are important facilitators and enablers of economic development activities. Understanding the vital role these organizations will play, the lead organizations will be responsible for convening the relevant stakeholders, including the private sector, in moving their assigned actions forward. Where appropriate, co-leads from the community will be identified and engaged in implementing the Strategy and be accountable for achieving success. Representatives from these lead organizations will also serve as part of a Leadership and Implementation Committee. Overall stewardship of the Strategy will be provided by Calgary Economic Development under the guidance of the Chair and Board of Directors. The Office of the Mayor will also play an active role in the leadership committee for the Strategy. The Board of Directors of Calgary Economic Development will serve as the community lens overseeing strategies, progress reporting and community engagement. The Chair of the Board of Directors will make annual presentations to the Priorities and Finance Committee of Council.

*Note: City funded agencies participating in the leadership committee will retain the individual reporting structures to City Council for their respective organizations. The figure presented here is only for the purposes of implementing the Economic Strategy for Calgary.

resourcing the strategy

In drafting Building on our Energy, time and consideration has been given to additional resources that may be required for the Strategy's implementation. While the actual budget numbers required for individual actions and tactics may change over time, organizations participating in the Leadership and Implementation Committee were asked if the Strategy's implementation would fit within the context of their current business plan or if additional resources would be required. If additional resources were required, individuals were asked where those resources might be secured.

While many actions will require additional resources, in most cases it is believed funding can be sourced from the private sector as well as various departments and agencies of the provincial and federal governments. At this time there are two actions identified that will require additional funding support from The City of Calgary:

- Calgary Economic Development requests support for a full-time project manager for the Strategy
- Innovate Calgary will be requesting support from The City of Calgary as well as the provincial and federal governments and the private sector for the development and operation of an Energy Accelerator at Innovate Calgary

Details regarding these funding requests were included in the respective organizations' 2015-2019 business plans and budget requests.

Actions and tactics will continue to be examined as the Strategy is implemented and the economic environment changes, which might result in future resource requirements. Any additional resource requests will be raised in annual reporting on the Strategy as well as through the respective organizations' annual business plan review and budget submissions. For any new actions and initiatives, lead stakeholders are committed to seeking incremental funding sources other than The City of Calgary.

working with a living document

Building on our Energy is a living document. As such, it is intended the tactics employed to achieve success will evolve and change over time and the supplementary indicators to measure success for each action will be refined. However, through the implementation of the Strategy our eyes will remain on the vision and progress toward the vision will be measured through a set of core indicators. In the implementation of the Strategy there are two mechanisms in place to continually evaluate progress, challenges and priorities:

- The Leadership and Implementation Committee will meet three times each year to discuss progress. As the committee responsible for the Strategy's implementation, this committee will suggest any changes taking place in Calgary that might influence the tactics undertaken for the Strategy.
- An annual Economic Summit will be held to provide a progress report to the broader community and gain their feedback regarding any changes in threats, opportunities and priorities through the year. This feedback will be considered by the Leadership and Implementation Committee and will be included in the annual report to the Priorities and Finance Committee.

measuring success

Measuring the success of the Economic Strategy will be done at two levels.

- Core indicators have been developed to measure progress towards the three elements of the vision for the Economic Strategy: Calgary is a city of boundless energy. The source of our energy and economic success is our sense of community and our commitment to shared prosperity and sustainable development. We welcome everyone to be part of the energy. The core indicators are meant to serve as a barometer on the progress of the economy and the Strategy as a whole. The Economic Strategy is a comprehensive strategy incorporating a diverse set of community and economic areas of focus. As such, the data for the core indicators are drawn from a variety of sources including The City of Calgary’s Citizen Satisfaction Survey, The City of Calgary Planning Development and Assessment and Transportation departments, Calgary Economic Development’s National Perceptions Survey, Sustainable Calgary and Statistics Canada. Drawing from these diverse sources ensures the core indicators used for the Economic Strategy align with the core indicators being used by the Lead Organizations implementing the Strategy.
- Supplementary indicators have been developed to measure the progress of each of the individual actions in the Strategy. These indicators have been developed in conjunction with Lead Organizaitions and Primary Stakeholders. Core indicators will be quantified and the supplementary indicators will be refined as the Leadership and Implementation team comes together to discuss the actioning of the Strategy.

Note: Core indicators will be further quantified with the leadership and implementation team in early 2015.

Building on our Energy is an update to the 10-year Economic Strategy for Calgary. It builds on the existing strategies of the City and the Province. It builds on the inherent strengths of Calgary and draws on the energy of Calgary's global connections, entrepreneurs, innovators, communities and people in collaborating to achieve a common vision for economic development in Calgary.

In drafting the update to the Strategy, a great deal was learned from the many participants in economic development. More than 400 individuals have provided input into the Strategy. Key organizations have been requested to serve on the Leadership and Implementation Committee and to sign a signatory letter committing their organization to contribute to the implementation of the Strategy.

The Strategy is built on six areas of focus:

- Global Energy
- Entrepreneurial Energy
- Innovative Energy
- Community Energy
- People Energy
- Collaborative Energy

The following section details these areas of focus and actions associated with these areas of focus. The Strategy is designed to drive collaboration and foster greater alignment between all of those organizations influencing Calgary's economic development. The Strategy is also designed as a living document. As organizations come together to collaborate on the Strategy's implementation, priorities, processes and performance metrics will change. The Strategy is a reflection of what we know today and will evolve as we learn and new opportunities are presented.

The next section presents each area of focus with details provided for:

- Rationale
- Strategies, actions and tactics
- Supplementary performance indicators
- Lead, primary and secondary stakeholders
- Incremental resources required
- Timelines for implementation

global energy

Calgary is an undisputed global energy centre. Our international reputation attracts new people, investment and businesses as we strengthen the energy value chain.

rationale:

The energy industry accounts for more than 30 per cent of Alberta and Calgary's gross domestic product and is the key driver for economic and population growth.

Calgary is home to the head office of every major oil and gas company in Canada. The energy sector comprises 31.6 per cent of Calgary's GDP, 67 per cent of Alberta's exports and 50 per cent of capital expenditures in Alberta. The strength of the industry has led Calgary to have Canada's highest concentration of engineers, third busiest passenger and cargo airport and largest levels of investment and economic growth. While this is an enviable strength from which to build, the reputation of the industry is at risk as expressed in pipeline project delays and environmental rulings.

strategy one

Build on Calgary’s position as the centre for responsible energy development and leadership.

action one: Promote the social, environmental and innovative advancements in the energy industry.

potential tactics:

- Work with other orders of government and industry to create a communication strategy in support of Canada’s Energy Strategy
- Investigate the feasibility of an energy literacy and innovation centre for Calgary
- Attract high profile energy, renewable energy and environmental conferences
- Compile energy literacy content as part of an ambassador program (tactic in collaborative energy)

supplementary indicators:

- Number of people attending energy, renewable energy and environmental conferences
- Citizens’ support for Canada’s energy sector
- Recognition of Calgary as a leading global energy centre lead organization:

Calgary Economic Development

stakeholders:

Primary:

- Canadian Association of Petroleum Producers
- Government of Canada
- Government of Alberta
- Canada’s Oil Sands Innovation Alliance
- Calgary TELUS Convention Centre
- Innovate Calgary

Secondary:

- Calgary Stampede
- Tourism Calgary
- Calgary Board of Education
- Southern Alberta Institute of Technology
- TELUS Spark

incremental resources: YES

- Private sector
- Government of Alberta
- Government of Canada

entrepreneurial energy

Calgary is a magnet for businesses fostering pathways to purposeful economic diversification and growth.

rationale:

The economies of Calgary and Alberta are highly reliant on the export of energy products to the United States suggesting the need for purposeful diversification for economic sustainability. Calgary has the highest concentration of small businesses among major cities in Canada generating significant employment and opportunity for economic diversification.

With 95 per cent of Calgary’s businesses having fewer than 50 employees, the Canadian Federation of Independent Business (CFIB) Calgary region is ranked as the best place in Canada to do business. Calgary has strengths in a number of sectors providing opportunity and support to entrepreneurs. Moreover, Calgary based companies handle 15 per cent of global oil and gas mergers and acquisitions deal flow—resulting in Calgary ranking 22nd of 83 on the Global Financial Centres Index in 2014. Calgary is geographically located to serve as Western Canada’s transport and logistics hub. However, CFIB ranks the city low in policy support for small business. The engagement process suggests that Calgary’s small businesses require more support and need to be better connected to larger businesses in Calgary.

Calgary fosters a culture of innovation where problems are solved through a systems approach harnessing the power of technology.

rationale:

Innovation, including our ability to create new products and services and increase the strength of our communities, is the key to future success.

Calgary is home to a growing technology and innovation sector. However, Calgary’s technology community lacks profile within the broader business community and support to the technology sector and technology start-ups is fragmented and accessing venture capital can be difficult. This has resulted in missed opportunities to bring new products to market or to increase productivity within our existing industries. In addition, social innovation is seen as an emerging opportunity in resolving existing social, cultural, economic and environmental challenges for the benefit of people and the planet. As our corporations seek a social license to operate and we struggle to cope with issues of homelessness, income disparity and employment of marginalized groups, social innovation may well hold the key to unlocking the answers we seek.

Calgary embraces social inclusion and shared prosperity.

rationale:

While Calgary's economy is growing, the city is also experiencing the fastest growing income gap in Canada suggesting not all of Calgary's citizens are benefiting from the city's prosperity.

The top 10 per cent of Calgary families earn more than 37 times that of the bottom 10 per cent of families. Unemployment and labour force participation rates for youth, people with disabilities, First Nations and Aboriginal People are well above unemployment for the mainstream population. At the same time, a recent survey suggests 50 per cent of businesses consider access to skilled labour as a barrier to future business growth. In addition, new Canadians now comprise more than 50 per cent of migrants to Calgary, requiring additional efforts to be made to integrate new Canadians into the workforce and into our communities.

strategy one

Invest in equal opportunity and prosperity for all Calgarians.

community energy

Calgary is a vibrant, urban and prosperous community that offers people friendly neighbourhoods, diverse housing and inspirational spaces.

rationale:

Calgary is under continued pressure to build housing, transportation, recreation and cultural infrastructure for a rapidly expanding population.

With population growth of 12.6 per cent between 2006 and 2011, Calgary’s growth rate more than doubles the national average and is 2 per cent higher than the provincial rate of growth. Access to a diversity of housing has been identified as a challenge in Calgary. At the same time, studies suggest sense of community and quality of place plays a major role in attracting and retaining residents. Calgary ranks first among large cities for spending in arts and culture and number one of 30 small global cities by Sport Business Magazine, suggesting Calgary should continue efforts to foster arts, culture and recreation to build the city’s identity and increase the retention rate.

strategy one

Build Calgary as a model city for sustainable development and affordable living.

action one

Build a range of housing options for all ages, income groups and family types to meet the needs of residents today and tomorrow.

potential tactics:

collaborative energy

Calgary is the best place to live in Canada, with strong collaboration between public, private and non-profit sector partners in building a great city.

rationale:

There are multiple private sector, not-for-profit and city-funded agencies promoting Calgary as a place to live, study, visit and do business. Our promotional brand for Calgary is good step forward. Better collaboration to communicate more intensely with this one voice will increase the effectiveness of individual marketing efforts. Similarly, collaboration is seen as a fundamental aspect to the successful implementation of the Economic Strategy for Calgary.

Perceptions research shows that while Calgary is viewed positively as a place to work, do business and earn income, others perceive Calgary as lacking access to culture, cultural diversity, economic diversity and academic choices. At the same time, stakeholders consider that a lack of coordination and buy-in resulted in limited success implementing the 2008 Strategy.

strategy one

Tell Calgary's unique and compelling story with a unified approach.

action one

Position Calgary as the location of choice to live, visit, meet, start a business and invest.

potential tactics:

- Support Calgary. Be Part of the Energy. as the unified, locally embraced brand
- Build a brand adoption tool kit for corporate Calgary and other organizations
- Coordinate and enhance marketing campaigns in key target markets across Canada
- Develop and deploy an ambassador program for Calgary
- Launch a social media contest to collect personal Be Part of the Energy Stories

supplementary indicators:

- Perceptions of Calgary as a place to visit, live, study, launch a career, meet or compete
- Scores on external rankings on quality of life, ability to find a life, employment, etc.
- Number of organizations using the brand
