Re: PUD2019-0744: Health Impact Assessment Update Report

The Federation of Calgary Communities (the Federation) is the support organization for over 230 community based non-profit organizations, including 151 community associations. The Federation has acted as a key stakeholder on the Health YYC initiative led by Joyce Tang since the beginning of this project in 2017 and we are in support of not only the work that this project has been able to accomplish to-date, but also the goals it aims to achieve in the coming years.

The adoption of the eight healthy principles into planning and development policies and practices will help Calgary create a city that isn't just vibrant, strong and safe, but one that also promotes neighborhoods that support social interaction, health and wellness. Furthermore, this initiative supports improving equitable accessibility to amenities and services for all ages, abilities and income. This initiative is also important because it recognizes the important relationship and collaboration between communities, industry and health officials and the vital role that they all play to make our neighborhoods and ultimately our city a great place to live.

The creation of Playbook, best practices guide, and continuous sharing of information and resources will be a great tool that will support all stakeholders involved in the planning stages of building healthy communities in Calgary.

The Federation appreciates being involved in this process as a partner, and we look forward to more opportunities for future collaboration on this initiative.

Sincerely,

Respected Members of Council:

Re: PUD2019-0744: Health Impact Assessment Update Report

As the Urban Land Institute (ULI) Alberta Co-Chair for the HealthYYC Initiative, I have had the direct pleasure of working with Joyce Tang from Urban Strategy for the past two years. The alignment between ULI and Urban Strategy for this initiative has been key in advancing the conversation between the development community alongside planning and development policy surrounding health and the future of community building in our city.

In its capacity, the advisory group has strengthened connections between stakeholders who have otherwise been isolated within their respective disciplines. This group has broadened the conversation surrounding the considerations for the creation of a healthier, more sustainable means of community wellbeing. It has built awareness on research, best practices, and local initiatives in support of healthy communities. And it has initiated a strategy to leverage our strength as a group in developing a local resource in support of this goal.

It is with great sincerity that I endorse the recommendation that the advisory group continue to achieve the tangible creation of a toolkit to operationalize the implementation of the healthy building principles for community building and development. The toolkit is a great opportunity to identify the local barriers and opportunities to a healthier built fabric and facilitate collaboration between planning and development policy and the real estate development community. ULI looks forward to continuing this partnership with the City of Calgary.

Yours truly,
